ALUMNI ORGANIZATION

The alumni of the University, or of its different departments, have formed many organizations to keep in touch with one another and to promote the interests of the University. The principal organizations for the general Alumni, not limited to those of any one department, or locality, are the Harvard Alumni Association and the Associated Harvard Clubs.

THE HARVARD ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Harvard Alumni Association was founded in 1840, "to make closer the contact of Alumni with the University and with each other." Its Constitution provides that "the recipients of all degrees heretofore or hereafter granted by Harvard College of at least one year's standing and the Members of all Faculties of Harvard College are members of this Association, or are entitled to be so regarded."

The Alumni Association publishes the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, a weekly publication issued during the college year; it publishes the Harvard Alumni Directory; it conducts an Appointments Office to procure positions for Harvard graduates; through its Nominating Committee it nominates candidates for the Board of Overseers, for Directors of the Association, and certain members of the Harvard Fund Council, and it conducts the Alumni exercises on Commencement afternoon.

THE ASSOCIATED HARVARD CLUBS

The Associated Harvard Clubs now include about one hundred and twenty Clubs scattered all over the world — in Europe, South America, Mexico, Porto Rico, Hawaii, Japan, the Philippines, the Straits Settlements, and China, as well as in Canada and the United States.

The members of these Clubs are not necessarily holders of degrees, and include those who have attended Harvard as members of a Graduate or Professional School as well as those who have attended Harvard College.

THE HARVARD CLUB OF ANDOVER

THE CHARTER MEMBERS

In the month of February 1903 five loyal graduates met to discuss the advisability of organizing a Harvard Club. As a result the following letter was sent to all Harvard men in Andover.

“A few of us who love the crimson banner think that it would be a good thing for all Harvard men in Andover to get together once in a while for better acquaintance and for our mutual pleasure and benefit.

There are not many of us—twenty or more. Ought we not all to meet at Phillips Inn, Tuesday evening, March 3rd, at half past seven to talk the matter over? Come a little earlier, if you can. There will be something to eat at the hour named. So bring your appetite along. Come if possible, for we very much need your presence, especially the first time. Work-a-day clothes.

Yours the few.”

Signed.

FREDERIC PALMER
CORWIN F. PALMER
WILLIAM G. GOLDSMITH
CHARLES E. ABBOTT
E. T. BREWSTER

At the time of this letter Rev. Frederic Palmer was rector of Christ Church. Corwin F. Palmer was Superintendent of the Public Schools. William G. Goldsmith had been Principal of Punchard Free School and Postmaster. Dr. Charles E. Abbott was a leading physician; and Edwin Tenney Brewster was an Instructor in Phillips Academy.

In response to the letter sixteen Harvard men met at the Phillips Inn on Tuesday, March 3, 1903, and organized the Harvard Club of Andover.

One of those present was Arthur Stanley Pease, now President of Amherst College. On reaching his room he made the following entry in his diary.

“This evening I went home to Andover and made a short call upon Mr. Benner, then going with him to a meeting at Phillips Inn where the HARVARD CLUB OF ANDOVER was formed. There were present Messrs. C. F. Palmer, W. L. Ropes, C. E. Abbott, A. E. Hulme, Edwin Brewster, Henderson, Durand, Goldsmith, Bullinger, A. T. Belknap, Lansing, Rev. Clark Carter, Torrey, Benner, C. J. Stone and myself. After a good dinner a constitution was adopted and the following officers elected. President C. F. Palmer; Vice-President, C. E. Abbott; Secretary and Treasurer, A. E. Hulme. It was voted to have three meetings a year. Classes in the University from 1846 (Mr. Ropes) to 1902 were represented. At 11.30 the meeting broke up”.

In a recent letter President Pease writes: —

“Four or five of these on my list I cannot now visualize, but others I know well. Prof. W. L. Ropes was the Seminary Librarian and the father of Professor James Hardy Ropes of Harvard. Drs. Abbott, Torrey and Hulme were well known at the time. Benner, Bullinger and Brewster were teachers in Phillips. Goldsmith was a principal of Punchard; later a postmaster. He had been a pupil of Asa Gray at Harvard and was a very competent Botanist. Rev. Clark Carter was city missionary in Lawrence. Give to the present members of the Club my compliments and best wishes.”

The twenty-five charter members signed the roll as follows:

Corwin F. Palmer, Charles E. Abbott, Albert E. Hulme, Frederic Palmer, Samuel L. Fuller, *Wm. G. Goldsmith, *G. W. W. Dove, Colver J. Stone, John E. Lansing, Arthur T. Belknap, *Clark Carter, *Walter G. Durand, Wm. J. Henderson, *J. A. Leitch, Allen R. Benner, Edwin T. Brewster, Arthur Stanley Pease, Binney Gunnison, Joseph P. Bell, *N. E. Bartlett, Howard Bullinger, P. W. Thomson, G. M. R. Holmes, C. C. Payson, C. C. Scheffy.

Of the twenty-five charter members eight still live in Andover, six have died, and eleven have moved away.

* Deceased.

The Rev. Frederic Palmer, D.D. who is now living at 11 Quincy Street, Cambridge and still keenly interested in all that concerns Harvard, writes us:

“Your letter of February 22nd surprises me by its statement that the Harvard Club of Andover was founded so long ago as twenty-five years— . . . As I look back to those early days, it seems to me that our bond of union was that we were all Harvard men; however we differed in occupation, Harvard was our foundation and our glory. . . . Was she not superior in having no “campus”? Would not any one presuming to insult “the Yard” by so vulgar an appellation be at once assassinated and thrown into the river? Just as Jenny’s lover divides all girls into two classes—other girls and Jenny—so we divided all Colleges into other Colleges and Harvard.

Such loyalty, however, is apt with age, either of the organization or of the individual, to grow a little thin and to need a deeper bond of union. I have the impression that the Andover Harvard Club joined with others for a while at least in presenting books, somewhat after the fashion of Deturs, to worthy students whose literary taste it was desired to raise. Perhaps there have been other good deeds since my day. But I know that among our good deeds there was the development of a spirit of fellowship among the members, a sense of kinship and brotherhood; and this, I am confident, still continues and will continue ever”. . . .

Corwin F. Palmer after leaving Andover was for seven years Superintendent of Schools at St. Johnsbury, Vt. Then he resigned and moved to Mount Vernon, N. Y. He has made many trips in South America, the West Indies, throughout the United States and Alaska. He is now devoting himself exclusively to managing travel tours in Europe. In a letter of recent date he writes.

“I am pleased that our child which we brought into being has grown and has rounded out a quarter century and is vigorous and prosperous. My best wishes to you collectively and individually”.

Samuel Lester Fuller is a banker in New York City, a partner of the firm of Kissel, Kinnicutt and Co.

John E. Lansing is Professor of Chemistry in Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y.

Arthur T. Belknap is instructor in Mansfield State Normal School, Mansfield, Pa.

William J. Henderson in 1903 an instructor at Punchard is now with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston.

Arthur Stanley Pease is President of Amherst College.

Binney Gunnison who in 1903 was Instructor of Elocution in the Andover Theological Seminary is now Dean of the Curry School of Expression, Boston.

Howard Bullinger is a broker with Baker Young & Co., 50 Congress St., Boston.

C. C. Payson is a cotton merchant with office at 19 Pearl Street, Boston.

C. C. Scheffy is an instructor in the Boston English High School.

AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

At the end of its first quarter century the Club still flourishes. During all that time its regular meetings held three or four times a year have been well attended and enjoyable gatherings.

We have had with us a distinguished array of professors, officers of the university, graduates and undergraduates who have brought to us their message of good will and kept us in more intimate touch with Harvard than otherwise would have been possible. Our original membership of twenty-five has grown gradually to eighty-one. And as the years go on we get to know each other better and enjoy the companionship and fellowship which our common interest gives us.

The aims of our Club are primarily to promote acquaintance among the Harvard men of Andover, and to maintain their contacts with our Alma Mater. But we should not let a false feeling of modesty blind us to our responsibility to widen the influence of the University in our community.

With all loyalty to our Alma Mater, if we can unbar the gates of her supposed seclusion, and reveal to others her treasuries of learning, her advantages of material equipment, and the great minds which guide her destinies, we shall help those about us to love and to respect Harvard University.
